

Vandalism in South Wilmington

Shattered

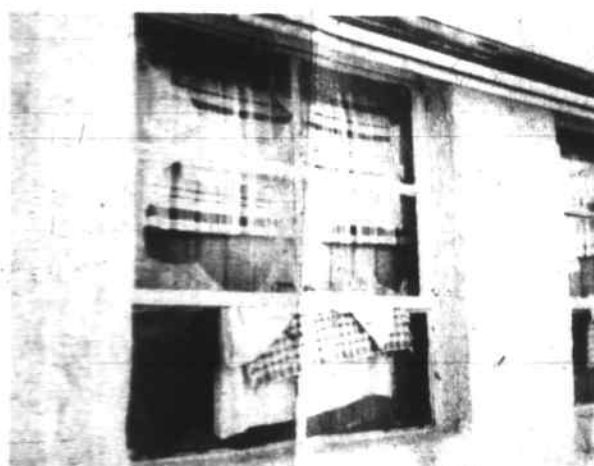

The vandals didn't miss a pane in Marion Murphy's office.

Recently the Town Crier wrote of the old volcano on the Woburn-Wilmington line, and of Squaw Pond, long since filled in. There was a store, 50 years ago, and an old Greek Church.

The volcano is now long gone, but there is still action, of a type of vandalism. Sunday night that vandalism erupted.

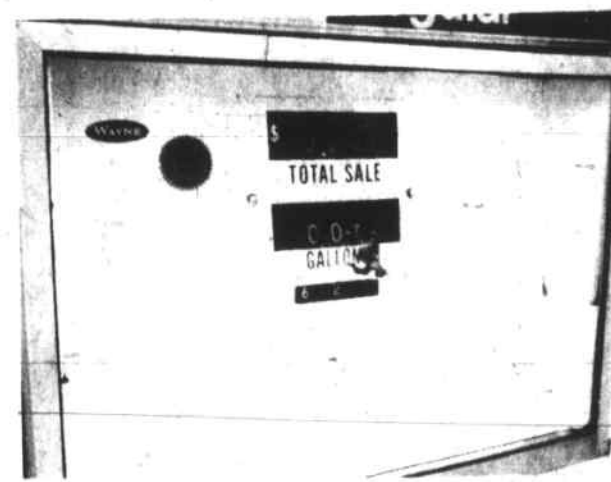

Mel Southmayd's garage, which is the old Jack Howard place grown into modern buildings, had every window broken, and gas pumps stoned.

Next door, at the office of Marion Murphy, not only was every window broken, but a shambles was made of the interior furniture.

Traffic supervisors may unionize

Steps are being taken toward the unionization of the Wilmington traffic supervisors. The State Department of Labor has informed the Town Crier that a meeting will be held on April 6 at which it will be determined if an election should be held.

The April 6 meeting will be an informal discussion between management, the representative of the traffic supervisors, and the State Labor Board. If enough members of the supervisors seem interested, or at least thirty percent, then the State Labor Board would hold an election.

The union seeking to represent the traffic supervisors is the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, Council 41.

Dorothy Charbonnier of Auburn Avenue heads up the group studying unionization.

Wilmington has recently been transferred into the Mystic Valley area. Frank Donnelly is the area board president, and will welcome additional members. There is to be a public hearing, following the meeting of next Wednesday. It is planned as an opportunity to allow Wilmington residents to speak of concerns for mental and retardation services.

Seniors to have visiting association

Wilmington will soon have a Friendly Visiting Association. The program will be run out of the Senior Citizens' Drop-in Center, and will serve the elderly population of the town.

Volunteers of all ages are needed. All that is needed is a few hours a week in which to enjoy a rewarding experience.

Referrals are also needed. Anyone who would appreciate visits by members of the service should call Pat at 657-7595.

Students taking over

Several weeks ago, in preparation for Student Government Day, an event fostered by the League of Women Voters, high school students elected their town officers. The selectmen, moderator, town manager and assistant town manager are pictured, on this page.

Others who were are: School Committee: Skerry Bearse, Brenda Carta, Carol Fillio, Moira Donnelly, Debby Leonard and Karen Tutela.

Appointed officials are chief of Police, Donna Begonia; Town Clerk, Karen Fitzgerald; Conservation Commission, Eric Wood; Recreation Department, Dot Lawler; Library

Trustees Tame Tutela and Valerie Doucette.

In all, about 60 students have been named to a post in town government. Many of them have been acquiring experience during the past week.

The High School Principal - elect, Kathy Marabite, and the stand-in for School Superintendent, Lucia Valente are ready to take over their duties on April 1.

Trips are being planned for April first for the student officials. They will be escorted by League members, and town officials.

The student banquet is on April 4, in the North Intermediate School. It is to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Attended state leadership conference

Nineteen High School students were among those who were present at the Fourth Annual State Leadership Conference in Sturbridge, from March 23 to 25. All were in competition, in academic events in the business world, such as stenography, typing, accounting, clerical procedures, communications, job interviews etc. There were also workshops, and occupational mini-sessions. Approximately 30 communities participated. Competition was very strong.

Mrs. Frances Boudreau, advisor, and Mrs. Suellen Doggett, co-advisor were with the pupils on their trip to Sturbridge.

There will be a visit to Finnmark, where the Lapps herd reindeer over barren hills, and a visit with a Lapp family, together with a visit to the Midsummer night.

Oslo, home of Sonja Heine, and Olden, located on the North Fjord, a trip to the beginning of a glacier. The lecture is said to be a memorable journey through the land of the modern Vikings.

Friends of Harnden Tavern

A group of Wilmington townspeople gathered at the Harnden Tavern last Thursday evening to hear Steve O'Brien, president of the "Friends of Harnden Tavern," lead a discussion on "How to Research Your Family Tree," a subject growing in popularity since the recent television broadcast of Alex Haley's "Roots."

Mr. O'Brien suggested points at which to begin one's search - old albums, diaries, deeds or other family documents. He suggested taping an oral history of the elder members of one's family in order to retain a permanent record of anything this older and most knowledgeable generation can contribute, and the reinstitution of the "family reunion" as an opportunity time to collect family data. Once all family sources are exhausted, there are countless others from which to draw in order to put all the pieces of one's family heritage together. Libraries, church records, the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization, the National Archives and the Genealogical Library of the Mormon Church are but a few. Although the trail can become complicated and time-consuming, it is an interesting and worthwhile effort.

After O'Brien's presentation, Mrs. Grace Reynolds, descendant of Wilmington's first white settler, William Butters, shared her personal genealogical records which she has been compiling for the past five years.

Since genealogy has become such a popular topic of late, the "Friends of Harnden Tavern" are looking into the possibility of conducting genealogical workshops at Harnden Tavern in the fall, should there be enough interest to make such a project worthwhile.

Next month's meeting of the "Friends," at which time the topic will be "Wilmington During the Revolution."

Student Officers

Student Government Day is April 1. The student selectmen have already tried out the chairs at the selectmen's table.

Boy Scouts plan ticket sales for EXPO 1977

Tickets go on sale Thursday for the Greater Lowell Council Boy Scouts EXPO 1977, which is to be held in the Cawley Stadium on May 21.

Cubs, Scouts and Explorers of nine towns, from Wilmington and Tewksbury through Dracut, and Tyngsboro will participate, and will be selling tickets. The tickets sell for $1 and there is a generous 35 per cent commission which helps the Scouts earn money for uniforms, scouting equipment, and summer camp. Robert Charpentier of Chelmsford, chairman of the Greater Lowell Council thinks it is an excellent opportunity for the scouts, and it also keeps Council expenses down.

EXPO is an annual theme with Greater Lowell Scouts. There are over 4000 cubs, scouts and explorers in the district, and they, privately or as units, take pride in their achievement. The wide variety of scouting which will be on display includes Indian lore, signaling, first aid, cooking, camping, pioneering, cub games, skits and puppets, flags, camp craft, safety, survival, den doodles, backpacking, bicycle safety and many other subjects.

Greater Lowell Council is a member agency of the Wilmington Community Fund and the United Fund of Merrimack Valley.

Summer jobs: Look now

by Lisa Boivin

When contemplating a summer job, many teens don't realize the responsibilities it entails. First of all, if you're planning on having a job this summer and haven't begun looking yet, you better start now. Most employers begin hiring for the summer during April and May. If you have a place in mind and haven't gotten your application in yet then you can't expect to be called upon to work. By June most of the positions will have already been filled, probably by someone your own age who just happened to be early.

Are you aware of the daily responsibilities or are you thinking only about how much money you hope to have by next September? If you don't like getting up in the morning for school then you probably won't like getting up for work either, especially on those summer days that are made for the beach. Have you arranged for transportation to and from work? You really shouldn't have to depend on your parents especially if they work or if dropping you off is out of their way. Have you given any thought to your parents' vacation? If they have plans to travel, you should decide whether or not you want to go along. If you do accompany them then you have to arrange for your own vacation to coincide with theirs. If you should decide not to go with them, are you causing them any inconvenience?

A job in the summer may look terrific right now, but by the middle of July you might have changed your mind. One 17-year-old girl, speaking about her part-time job last summer says, "I couldn't wait to get out of there every day. I used to sit and watch the clock."

Of course, working during your summer vacation isn't all bad. It's a great way to meet new people and learn new things. It's good experience in all areas, including finances, getting along with others, following the boss's orders, and responsibility in general. So, when you're considering trying to get hired this summer, have fun, but keep in mind the certain obligations that are expected from you.

Tewksbury health clinics

The Tewksbury School and Town Health Departments are trying to inform as many parents as possible about children and young people who may be susceptible to Measles. With recent outbreaks of Measles in a few communities, in the state, the Department of Public Health is recommending that parents consult their child's physician about vaccination or re-vaccination. Notices from the school system have been sent to all parents of children who may be susceptible to Measles. Youngsters considered susceptible are those who:

1. Were vaccinated before 1966.
2. Were vaccinated before they reached their first birthday.
3. Were not vaccinated because they had a history of having the disease.

Parents whose children are considered susceptible to Measles should consult their family physician and return the notice to their local school. Parents who did not receive a notice, and who think their child may be susceptible should pick up a notice at their local school.

The School and Health Departments plan to notify parents about the dates, times and place/s for Measles and Triple (Measles, Rubella, and Mumps) Vaccine Clinics.

Quannapowitt Players entertain Brownies

On Saturday, March 19, Brownies of Troop 205, Wilmington enjoyed an outing to the Quannapowitt Playhouse in Reading.

Barbara Cann, director of the recent production of "Stop the World I Want to Get Off" took the girls on a very informative tour of the theatre where they learned of the many phases of producing a play, both on and off stage.

She explained how the sound and lighting work, and all the girls had a chance to experiment with many color combinations and lighting effects.

From the sound booth she led the way downstairs to the dressing room and show costumes ready for the evening's performance. Each of the girls experienced the thrill of wearing theatrical makeup and soon there were 13 Brownie clowns, each with a different expression.

Highlight of the afternoon had to be when Robert Perry, a member of the Quannapowitt Players and make up artist for the Quannapowitt Children's Theatre Group donned his curly blue wig and performed his amusing clown act. "Stars the Clown" delighted the children.

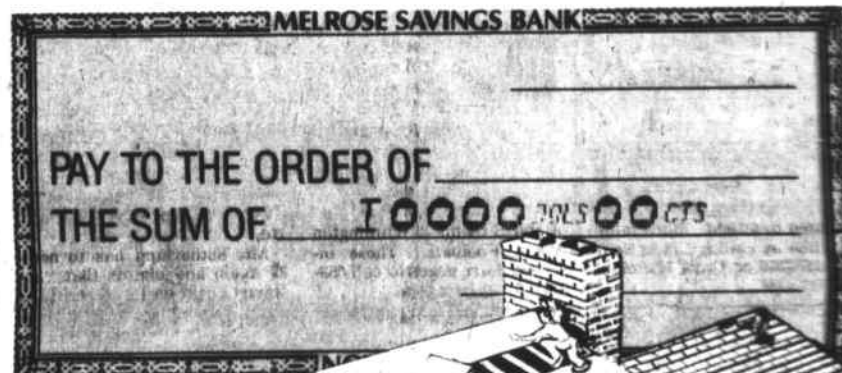

Brownie clowns for the afternoon were Pamela Beattie, Dawn Borenstein, Kelly Corrigan, Winnie Corsaro, Suzanne Curtin, Ellen Gentile, Dawn and Nicole Grinovich, Kara Larson, Julie Maninos, Laura Minchello, Debbie Nix and Aurelle Smith. Smaller clowns were Kristin and Heather Beattie and Joel Grinovich.

LETTERS

Fellow Citizens:
I would like to pay a special tribute publicly to three men of the Wilmington Fire Department and a most grateful thank you for saving the life of my husband, E. Hayward Hines.

The man who saved his life was John Brown, Jerry Duggan and George Anderson, Jr. along with Officer Robert Sholey. Their fast arrival and their intellectual capacity in their performance was unbelievable.

My husband, Dr. Rudolph Oehm told me that if it weren't for them he would be gone. Dr. Oehm had high praise for the Wilmington Fire Department and thought they were just fabulous and that we in Wilmington are very fortunate.

It is a feeling of security knowing that their knowledge and training and quick response to a call for help is our privilege to have. May all of us show our appreciation to these wonderful men as well as the entire department, by our support, honor and respect.

I believe that Dr. Oehm called the Department and personally thanked and commended them.

May God bless them, always.

Cordially yours,
Mrs. E. Hayward Hines

A letter to the Editor:
In the recent local election in the Town of Wilmington, I was a write-in/sticker candidate for an open position on the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority. Certain circumstances developed that day that led to some confusion at the polls. I have informed the local officials of my concerns over the election proceedings that caused this confusion so that in any future election where there could be another write-in/sticker candidate, the election would progress in a more orderly manner. I also believe that each of the voters in town are due an explanation of the circumstances of that day.

Misinformation from the local election officials concerning the size of sticker that would fit in the write-in slot of the voting machine was the cause of early jamming of the machines. Even though my campaign workers hurriedly trimmed down the remaining stickers to be passed out, the election officials had already made a decision to discourage (and in some cases forbid) the further use of the sticker throughout the rest of the day. This decision took away from the voter the convenience option of the sticker and they had to actually write-in my name to cast their ballot.

The small voting instruction card that was supplied with each sticker was declared campaign literature by the election officials and most voters were made to discard these instructions when they entered the polls. Without the card, the voter was left not knowing (1) how to prepare the sticker for use; (2) which write-in slot to use; and (3) that there was a sliding window that had to be opened before the sticker could be put in place. It is not difficult to imagine the frustration of the voters when they were placed in this situation.

Another resultant of the decision to now allow the voting instruction card into the polls was that many voters lost their confidentiality of voting as they had to rely on verbal instructions from the poll clerks to complete their write-in vote. The verbal instructions were necessary to supplement the instruction spotted within the voting machines as these did not contain the detailed information needed to complete this type of vote.

It is somewhat of a tribute to the intelligence of the Wilmington voters that as many of them as did overcame the barriers that tended to discourage the casting of the write-in vote at this election.

I thank all who tried to "stick" with me on that day.

Sincerely,
Joseph J. Hartka

The Wildcat pitching-catching corps for this spring includes junior lefthander Dave Sousa (kneeling) and L-R senior righthander Jim Stewart, catcher Bob Woods and junior righthander Randy Foster.

Wildcats hope to continue '76 momentum

Coach Jim Gillis is guardedly optimistic about the chances of his 1977 Wilmington High School baseball squad making a run at the top of the Merrimack Valley pack.

The Wildcats are coming off a 1976 tear that saw them win six straight to finish with a 10-8 MVC mark. Gillis hopes his team stays clear of its slow start last spring.

Gillis will have to trim the 45 candidates down to a workable 30-15 variety and 15 JV's, before the April 12 opener with Lawrence.

Veteran Wildcats returning include Steve Woods (2B), Bill Blaisdell (SS), Tom Stewart (Outfield), Jim Stewart (1B-Pitcher), Bruce Butters (Outfield), Rich Medeiros (3B) and Bob Woods (C).

Gillis lost some pitchers from last year's squad and he is currently looking at prospective hurlers John Milano, Dave Sousa, Randy Foster and Neil Wetzler.
